PHOTOGRAPHIC POETICS

Mystery, surrealism and almost dreamlike landscapes. Oriol Jolonch's photographs, constructed from a collage of snapshots taken by himself and digitally manipulated, evoke an imaginary reality. Specifically, the thirty black and white images that integrate the exhibition 'Me and Mr. Jones' show a protagonist wearing a top hat and contemplating an unreal landscape, always with his back to the viewer. For Jolonch, Mr. Jones is a metaphor for the human being who, thanks to his imagination, seeks alternatives to a world that he does not quite understand.

ARTISTIC ACTIVITIES AND DIALOGUES INTEGRATE THE PROGRAM OF MOBILE WEEK BARCELONA

To reflect on the challenges and limits of digital transformation, the Mobile World Capital entity launches Mobile Week Barcelona, a week full of activities and artistic creations. From the outset, starting on Monday, you will be able to discover ten artistic pieces, one in each district of Barcelona, which seek to bring mobile technology closer to citizens through art.

Ten districts, ten works

In the Museum of Natural Sciences in Barcelona, for example, you will find a collage by the artist Marta de los Pájaros that explores the ability of technology to transform the urban landscape. At the Les Corts Manufacturing Athenaeum, Daniel Duato presents the piece of video art Extramural, which shows a satellite image on which the interactions between users of social networks in Barcelona and other parts of the world are represented. And if you go to Sant Andreu, in the Ignasi Iglésias-Can Fabra Library, you will see the digital installation @BrossaInèdit, by Fernando

'Hooked on mobile', by Xavi Julià, can be seen at La Violeta de Gràcia.

Vilarriño, which invites viewers to interact with Brossa's poems. You will find the rest of the facilities at the Vall d'Hebron University Hospital, at the Nou Barris Technology Park, at the Sarrià Chemical Institute, at The Auditorium, at La Violeta de Gràcia, at the MNAC and at the Mobile World Center.

Debates and routes

In addition, a program of ten dialogues has been organized, in a round table format, in which specialists will discuss topics such as the digital revolution in the field of health, big data and privacy and the future of cities, among others. Finally, you can participate in ten guided tours thanks to which you will discover some spaces in the city that are benchmarks of creativity, innovation and culture.
